Police officers face drugs use investigation

BY ROB GIBSON
rob.gibson@mk-news.co.uk

FOUR police officers are under investigation for allegedly using Class A drugs.

The officers, all from Milton Keynes, were called in for interview on Thursday amid allegations relating to the possession and misuse of Class A drugs.

A source told MK NEWS that the move follows about ten months of detailed investigations into the alleged corruption of the four officers.

Thames Valley Police's Professional Standards Department will now conduct a full investigation and each officer has been served with a Regulation 9 notice, a written notice of the allegations, under The Police Conduct Regulations 2004.

A statement from Thames Valley Police said: "Four officers from Milton Keynes are currently under investigation by Thames Valley Police's Professional Standards Department for alleged use of illegal drugs.

"The Force prides itself on the professional approach of all members of staff.

"Any allegations are taken very seriously and will be investigated thoroughly.

"The investigation is ongoing and therefore no further comment can be made at this time."

The Professional Standards Department investigates and oversees all complaints made about the conduct of police officers or police staff members.

A full investigation usually involves statements being taken from the complainant, staff members and other members of the public.

Disciplinary hearing for cop over shooting

A POLICE marksman will face misconduct charges after a civilian was shot during a firearms awareness training session.

PC David Micklethwaite, from Coggeshall Grove, Wavendon Gate, was showing a gun to 11 civilian staff at Thames Valley Police HQ in Kidlington, Oxfordshire, when it went off.

The bullet hit 999 operator Keith Tilbury in the chest and went straight through his body, leaving him bleeding on the floor.

Mr Tilbury, 50, was rushed to the John Radcliffe Hospital, in Oxford, and underwent a life-saving four hour operation on May 30, 2007.

PC Micklethwaite was suspended from the firearms unit as the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) launched an immediate investigation into the incident.

Last Wednesday the IPCC announced that Thames Valley Police will pursue a misconduct hearing against PC Micklethwaite.

Yesterday he could not be reached at his home address.

The findings of the investigation were initially passed to the Crown Prosecution Service in October 2007, but in January this year the CPS decided PC Micklethwaite would not face criminal charges.

A statement from the IPCC after the incident said the gun was not standard police issue and was being used to demonstrate the variety and range of weapons that can be recovered by the public.

Part of the IPCC's investigation examined how live ammunition came to be present in a firearm during an awareness session.

'The file was then passed to Thames Valley Police who have now taken the decision to hold a misconduct hearing, on a date to be fixed,' a statement from the IPCC said.

Meanwhile the Health and Safety Executive is continuing a separate investigation into possible contraventions of health and safety at work legislation.

Train fire delays

BY JESSICA CUNNIFFE
jessica.cunniffe@mk-news.co.uk

THESE are the scenes after a fire on a freight train was extinguished on Friday, causing severe delays for people travelling through Milton Keynes.

An investigation is taking place after the Freightliner electric locomotive caught fire at around 11am on August 22.

The fire service was called to the incident half a mile south of Bletchley Railway Station on the West Coast Main Line at 12.10pm.

All four lines had to be closed and the train, which was travelling from Trafford Park in Manchester to Ipswich, was towed back up to sidings in Bletchley.

Normal services were not restored until 4pm after four lines were closed along with a section of Drayton Road near Skew Bridge.

Alex Holmes was one of the people affected by the delays.

He said: "Lots of people were quite frustrated by the occurrence and were left pretty helpless. With the situation not getting any better, hours went by.

"It was very frustrating and all I could see were heads desperately looking up at the departures board, as well as many on their phones to bosses and loved ones about the delays."

Street-level pedestrian crossing plan slated

ONE of the city's original planners has slammed proposals to place street-level pedestrian crossings on a grid road.

John Napleton (right), former director of Milton Keynes for the Commission for the New Towns, told MK NEWS he had to comment on the plans as they were 'going to kill someone'.

He was among 15 residents, councillors, transport groups and businesses who protested against the conclusion of a consultant's report on crossing options for the V4 Watling Street at a special council committee meeting last Wednesday.

The report by Mouchel, commissioned by Milton Keynes Council, recommends street-level crossings are placed at the signalised junctions planned on the grid road, instead of separated bridges or underpasses.

They will provide access to the new homes and facilities in the Western Expansion Area (WEA), south of Stony Stratford, for cyclists and pedestrians.

The report adds that Government policy advises the 'co-location of pedestrian and cyclists routes with vehicle routes' as it is 'considered that segregation from traffic leads to a feeling of vulnerability and a fear of crime'.

Bridges or underpasses would have an environmental impact, as mature trees would have to be removed, and would increase the construction cost.

Mr Napleton, who designed the grid roads, said the separation of road traffic from pedestrians and cyclists was one of the 'greatest successes' in Milton Keynes planning due to the freedom of movement it allows.

Traffic lights are an 'admission of failure' on the part of the planners, would cause delays, be environmentally unfriendly and 'result in a much higher rate of accidents'.

The council, which originally planned to build three pedestrian bridges across Watling Street and one across Dansteed Way, commissioned the report after Milton Keynes Green Party called for underpasses to be considered.

A lone voice at the special environment policy development committee, Cllr Vanessa McPake, said underpasses are underused.

"If we do not have [signal controlled street-level crossings] people will just walk across the grid road," she said.

"Where we use them we will not have the accidents let alone the deaths."

The report will be discussed at a future cabinet meeting.

The committee called for the cabinet to ignore the consultant's conclusions and has requested the council install underpasses or other non-street-level crossings, in line with the Milton Keynes Planning Manual and Milton Keynes Local Plan standards.

Evidence and witnesses sought over rape

A WOMAN was allegedly raped near a redway in Greenleys on Friday morning.

Detectives are appealing for information after the 25-year-old victim reported that she had been assaulted at around 4.30am.

The incident happened on the perimeter of the V5, Great Monks Street opposite Orchard Hall.

A full forensic investigation is currently under way and officers are turning to the public in a bid to find witnesses.

Det Insp Neil Dodds, leading the investigation, said: "I am appealing to anyone who believes they saw the woman in the Greenleys area, to contact me. I am also keen to hear from anyone who thinks they may have witnessed the assault itself or saw something they discounted at the time, but now feel may have been more suspicious."

Anyone with information is urged to contact Milton Keynes CID on 0845 8 505505.

UFOs sighted over MK – the truth is out there

SIX UFO sightings have been reported across Milton Keynes in one night.

Families and neighbours stood in the streets and stared up in amazement as orange, red and yellow lights flew through the sky above the city on Sunday.

Between 11.10pm and 11.30pm a total of six calls were made to police by people who reported seeing the unusual objects speeding overhead.

The first sighting was from a resident in Woughton-On-The-Green who reported seeing a red light in the sky, moving quickly and without a sound.

A police spokesman said: "We received six calls on Sunday night but no one knows what they are.

"We have not sent any police out to them because there is not a lot they can do."

The next caller reported seeing 'orange things' flying through the air past his house.

There were four reports from Monkston alone, where one caller described the unidentified flying objects as 'little round-shaped orange things'.

Others said they were 'orange globes' and 'orange fireballs'.

At Lilleshall Avenue in Monkston one resident reported seeing strange lights flying across the sky, travelling in exactly the same line and at the extremely high speeds.

The caller said that families and neighbours were lining the street and were sure the objects were not a plane or fireworks.

Finally, at 11.30pm a caller from Bletchley reported about 20 bright lights flying in formation overhead.

Theories which have not been ruled out include hi-tech aircraft from Cranfield Airport, stray Chinese lanterns from a celebration in Bletchley or alien visitors.

Crash-for-cash fraudsters operating in MK

FRAUDSTERS are forcing innocent drivers to crash into them in order to milk compensation claims.

That is according to the Insurance Fraud Bureau (IFB) which says that since 1999 there has been more than 250 of these 'crash for cash' incidents in Milton Keynes – and that this is the tip of the iceberg.

Milton Keynes is one of the top 25 places these scams are taking place in the country, alongside places like Luton, Oldham, London and Newcastle.

Because they only cause damage, they are often not reported to the police. The gangs stage a car accident by slamming on their brakes and forcing the person behind to drive into them. This person will then be considered responsible.

They will then claim for damages, injuries, hire cars, transport costs and storage, often inventing phantom passengers to claim for extra injuries. From this they stand to make £30,000.

"For me that's quite scary," said Richard Davies of the IFB.

"I can't believe anyone would contemplate doing this. Why rob a bank anymore?"

Nationally these scams cost insurance customers £200 million a year, but the IFB has set about stamping it out.

PC Steve Roebuck from roads policing said: "We are aware that this is a national problem and that incidents do happen in Milton Keynes.

"We successfully caught a group of offenders committing this crime in Milton Keynes last year and they are currently being dealt with by Bedfordshire Police as part of an ongoing investigation."

A view of Point

BY JESSICA CUNNIFFE

Full moon over the unlit Point

IT was once a city symbol with blazing red lights that could be seen from afar.

But now the lights have been turned down on the prominence of The Point – literally and metaphorically.

The country's first multiplex cinema, situated on Midsummer Boulevard, is shrouded in darkness – and owner Hammerson will make no promise to restore its characteristic neon lights.

The developer is holding a meeting next month about the future of the silhouetted structure, home to the Odeon cinema and youth services.

Former councillor Paul Bartlett said: "Milton Keynes is a 24-hour town. It needs to be seen to be projecting its lights all the time. The lights basically are a symbol of Milton Keynes's newness and the innovation of the whole complex.

"It looks like a shell. It looks like a pyramid without the sphinx."

And Loughton councillor Andy Dransfield said: "It's rather sad. At one stage it was a very iconic sight. You could see it as you were driving up to Milton Keynes on the M1.

"It's very sad when companies fail to maintain buildings. I think they've got a duty to."

Richard Gray, Cinema Theatre Association (CTA) casework chairman, fears the deterioration heralds a similar fate to that of the demolished Elephant and Castle Odeon and the Derby Hippodrome.

"The Point is important – it was the start of the multiplex revolution in this country," he said.

"We've had this before – lost a number of cinemas in this way. They are most vulnerable when they are relatively young."

A Hammerson spokesman said: "Hammerson is currently working with Milton Keynes Council to ensure The Point is utilised.

"We are also talking to the centre:mk regarding the building which will inform our approach towards both new tenants and the building itself including its lights."

They didn't have a horse and carriage

THIS bride's classic car has not broken down.

Instead Taryn Canvin (née Ridley) from Hainault Avenue, Giffard Park rode to her wedding reception in a huge vintage-style recovery truck.

Mrs Canvin, who owns MC Services recovery company with new husband Mark, chose to use their largest truck, a Scammell Crusader, for their special day on Saturday.

The English-made lorry, which the couple bought in June, can lift up to 44 tonnes and is designed to recover HGVs and farming vehicles.

But on the big day it gave the bride and groom a lift from St Peters and St Paul's Church in Olney to the reception at Abbey Hill Golf Centre in Two Mile Ash.

Mrs Canvin said: "We decided to use the truck for the wedding as we live and breath recovery.

"It is our pride and joy. If we pitched up in a stretched limo it would not be us."

Cabbies live in constant danger of attack

TAXI drivers fear they may not come home at the end of a day's work after two drivers were sprayed in their eyes this month.

Private hire and hackney carriage drivers have said they fear for their livelihoods - and lives - after hearing that a driver was sprayed in the eyes and temporarily blinded before he was robbed last Sunday in Wolverton.

It follows an incident earlier in the month on August 3 when a driver was sprayed in the eyes by a teenager in Bradwell Abbey but managed to drive off.

Despite the dangers, taxi drivers do not receive self defence training.

Asif Mohammed, chairman of the Private Hire Association, said he and fellow drivers are 'scared'.

"Its not just a one off case. There are a lot of these cases, coming into contact with knives and guns," he said.

"We are all in this trade where we are trying to earn a living but our livelihood is threatened. When we go out to work we are not guaranteed to come back."

Peter Kirkham of the Hackney Carriage Association said: "This is something now that taxi drivers are facing.

"It's why a lot of them don't like working nights, because you are so vulnerable – you are a sitting target."

A council spokesman said: "We do license these drivers and of course we are very concerned for their welfare.

"Every driver that is licensed attends an induction course, during which personal safety is one of the issues covered – however we are probably the last people to hear about these type of attacks."

Keep pedestrians away from grid road traffic

SIR - A visitor to Milton Keynes once said to me, "I love Milton Keynes, it's like one big racetrack." And no matter what the council does, there will be plenty of drivers who treat our roads this way.

However, even with responsible driving, the grid roads are mainly 60mph.

Surely it is pure common sense to keep pedestrians away from traffic travelling at those speeds (A Bridge too far? – MK NEWS, August 20).

Not to mention the extra hindrance to traffic flow that crossings will bring.

The council needs to use it's brain on this one and ideally build underpasses, but failing that, build bridges. The worst alternative is pedestrian crossings.

Wesley Williams
by email

Islamic centre too far

SIR - I am concerned that an acre of land in Coffee Hall is set to become another Islamic centre in Milton Keynes.

I do not consider the centre as unique since the function is similar to other Muslim centres in Bletchley, Wolverton, Bradwell, Eaglestone, Granby, Netherfield and so on.

The centre will be located very close to a high density residential area and the facilities they are going to provide throughout the day and night for daily prayer, daily Madressa classes and night prayers during Ramadan is going to cause problems to the residents living in Coffee Hall and surrounding areas.

I do not understand how the centre is going to be based on multicultural lines since it will be used solely by Muslims.

Milton Keynes has enough mosques close to town centres and the time has come for the Muslim community to build a big community centre in the newly developing areas, providing enough parking spaces.

Most of the Mosques in town centres are small and they cannot accommodate growing Muslim population in these areas.

Milton Keynes Council is sleep-walking allowing mushroom growth of Mosques leading to segregated minority religious groups in some parts of Milton Keynes.

Muslims whether in Bradford or Milton Keynes tend to live close to Mosques, which is clearly manifested in Bletchley and Wolverton areas.

Name and address supplied

Wrong to shut POs

SIR - Both the Fenny Stratford and Water Eaton Post Office branches serve populations that have a much higher proportion of elderly people than the Milton Keynes average and my surveys have highlighted that most customers access these branches on foot so would find it very difficult to travel to the alternative at Queensway

I also have serious concerns about the ability of Queensway to cope with the 2,000 extra customers that would be displaced if both these closures, and that of Bow Brickhill, go ahead.

My surveys, over three days in July, show the average wait at Queensway was 16 minutes with the longest wait 40 minutes.

This is already unacceptable and PrimeCo which runs the franchise seem unwilling to provide adequate staffing levels to provide a decent service.

It would be irresponsible of Post Office management to close the Fenny Stratford branches when they cannot compel PrimeCo to provide an acceptable service at Queensway for existing customers, let alone the additional ones that would be displaced by these closures.

Report was inaccurate and a waste of money

SIR - Having not attended a council meeting before I found the special meeting of the Environment Policy Development Committee very interesting.

The first part of the meeting included many pertinent questions from the committee to the consultants. And the speakers from the public gallery added much important information.

The outcome recommending the rejection of 'at-grade pedestrian crossings' and favouring 'underpasses' where physically possible was very satisfactory, and it is hoped that Milton Keynes Council will take this on board.

What is extremely worrying is the poor standard of the consultants' report. It was inaccurate, incomplete and a complete waste of public money.

On the face of it, Mouchel appears to have been very gung-ho. They had taken the consultation as an academic exercise. They had not bothered to check on local conditions, they had not consulted with local people or local user groups, and they have produced a sloppy piece of work that was not only inaccurate but applies more to Coventry than to the special uniqueness of Milton Keynes.

Perhaps this criticism is being too simplistic and the council needs to share part of the blame? Was the initial brief too narrow and simplistic? Why were the consultants not given more background information such as The Milton Keynes Planning Manual?

Perhaps this consultation was really a PR exercise with the outcome of 'at-grade pedestrian crossings' anticipated? A way of imposing the wishes of the MK Partnership on the residents of Milton Keynes?

The consultation was, after all, only initiated after the farcical public consultation on crossings for the V4. At that time the public was only permitted to vote for footbridges or pedestrian crossings and was told that underpasses were not technically possible. Thus the majority voted for footbridges, probably not because they favoured footbridges but because they felt that anything was safer than pedestrian crossings.

At the meeting we were made aware of the views from two eminent sources, an ex-executive of the Milton Keynes Development Corporation and a Milton Keynes town planner. They both believe that underpasses are physically possible – and we the public should ask why this information was ignored by the council at the initial consultation?

The councillors on the special environmental development committee can be congratulated for pulling the Mouchel report to pieces and for recommending that all the crossings from the Western Expansion area across the V4 and H4 are underpasses, but they should also be asking why public money is being wasted on this very substandard consultation?

Need-to-know basics

SIR - I am writing to you with some information about the holy month of Ramadan, which is starting next week.

Why do I need to know about Ramadan?

This is an important question because the chances are one of your colleagues or friends will be a Muslim and will be observing the significance of this month.

What is Ramadan?

Ramadan is a very holy month for all Muslims. The two most important reasons are what God says in the Koran "O you who believe! Fasting is prescribed to you as it was prescribed to those before you, that you may learn self-restraint" (al-Baqara 2:183). Ramadan is the month of fasting and fasting during Ramadan is one of the five pillars of Islam.

Also, Ramadan is the month when God revealed the Muslim holy book the Koran.

So when do Muslims fast?

Muslims fast during Ramadan, which is the ninth Islamic month. Islamic months are based on the Lunar calendar.

At the beginning of Ramadan, it is appropriate to wish Muslims "Ramadan Mubarak" which means "Blessed Ramadan." Ramadan this year is likely to be on the September 1 or 2. Milton Keynes Muslim Association will follow the Central Mosque in London for the start and end of Ramadan.

Please see www.mkmuslims.org nearer the time for the exact start date.

So how do Muslims fast?

What is particular about this month is that all physically mature and healthy Muslims are obliged to abstain from all food, drink, gum chewing, any kind of tobacco use and any kind of sexual contact between dawn and sunset. However, that is merely the physical component of the fast.

Other aspects are the spiritual aspects of the fast, which include refraining from gossiping, lying, slandering and all traits of bad character.

All obscene and irreligious sights and sounds are to be avoided. Purity of thought and action is paramount.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: "The fast is a shield and on the day when one of you fasts, one should not utter obscenities, act immorally or show ignorance; for if a person comes to curse or fight him, he should say, 'I am fasting'".

So why do Muslims fast?

The fast is an exacting act of deeply personal worship in which Muslims seek a raised level of God-consciousness.

The act of fasting redirects the hearts away from worldly activities, towards The Divine. The month of Ramadan is a time for spiritual reflection, prayer, doing good deeds and spending time with family and friends.

The fasting is intended to help teach Muslims self-discipline, self-restraint and generosity. It also reminds them of the suffering of the poor, who may rarely get to eat well.

The finer details:

It is common to have one meal just before sunrise and another directly after sunset. The fast is usually broken by dates.

Following the breaking of the fast one prays the evening prayer and then sits down to eat.

Because Ramadan is a time to spend with friends and family, the fast will often be broken by different Muslim families coming together to share in an evening meal.

One common mistake which Muslims make is to over-eat in the evening.

This goes against the ethos of fasting and often causes people to feel slightly sick.

This can be well avoided by eating less and spacing out the food on breaking the fast.

Milton Keynes Muslim Association will have community iftars on Saturdays throughout Ramadan at Fishermead Trinity Centre and will hold nightly prayer from 9pm at the same venue daily. We invite all people to come and share in this event.

We hope this enlightens some and educates others, and wish all those who are fasting every success.

For more information on Ramadan contact us on info@mkmuslims.org.

2012 starts here

YOUNG sports stars raised a flag in the city centre on Sunday to celebrate the handover of the Olympics to London.

Milton Keynes joined the rest of the country in celebrating the handover of the Olympic flag to London at the end of Beijing Olympics closing ceremony.

There was an array of young sporting talent from the area on show, including bmx, skateboard and street dance demonstrations.

Local DJs also showcased their talent throughout the afternoon at Exchange Square and outside the Holiday Inn in Central Milton Keynes.

At 3.45pm a specially commissioned 'Handover Flag' was raised by the Mayor and some of the young sporting talent that the city boasts.

Organiser and Cultural Events Assistant, Liam Snusher said: "This is a chance for Milton Keynes to show its support for the London Olympics, to showcase the talent within the city and to have some fun while doing it."

While youngsters in Milton Keynes celebrated, some lucky schoolchildren had VIP tickets to the main event in London.

Looking forward: Alex Holmes with triple jump Olympic silver medallist Phillips Idowu in London

The Milton Keynes-based community group, Make A Difference, donated a set of tickets to anti-bullying campaigner Alex Holmes for his 'Heads High' campaign.

Four Radcliffe School anti-bullying ambassadors joined a crowd of 40,000 strong for the event.

Alex said: "I was so pleased to be able to take some Milton Keynes young people down there for the day, as the Olympics and especially London 2012 means so much to our young people.

"Here in MK we also have a lot to be proud of in terms of sporting success and indeed our very own Anti-Bullying Ambassadors doing us proud."

A baby and a buggy and you're off

SPORT England has provided Milton Keynes with a cash injection to keep the city active.

The South East branch has awarded MK with £40,879 to boost sport as part of the Milton Keynes Everyday Activity project.

It is an initiative to encourage residents to incorporate physical activity into their everyday life.

As part of the project the activities available to Milton Keynes citizens include bike rides, health walks and Tai Chi.

Also available is Buggyfit, aimed at the area's mums and dads to help promote healthier lifestyles among new parents.

The classes are an hour-long and usually involve two to four-mile walks, starting with a slower pace to warm up, stretches and then the pace is upped into a power walk or run.

All that is required to participate is a baby and a buggy.

The classes, which are run on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays by a fully qualified Buggyfit instructor, have become very popular with parents over the past year.

Keeping in shape: Buggyfit instructor April Tarabella with mums taking part in the classes

Hannah Bladen, Deputy Regional Director at Sport England South East said: "These classes are designed to encourage parents in the area to stay fit and healthy without the need to go to the gym.

"We all know how hectic life can be for new mums and dads, with little time to spare for themselves. Buggyfit is the perfect way for parents to keep active while still being able to spend time with their little ones."

For more information about the classes or for a full class schedule please contact Kirsty Heath at Everyday Activity on 01908 254456 or visit www.milton-keynes.gov.uk/sportsdev

The inn is full at the YMCA every day

THE YMCA is having to turn people away on a daily basis because it is not big enough to cater for the growing city's homeless population.

That is why they are putting in a £5 million bid for the first round of a £16 million overhaul of Milton Keynes's largest hostel.

But they are not just planning to increase the capacity of the existing 122 apartments, of which 35 are high support beds and 15 are emergency.

Tony Round, fundraising manager, hopes the improved YMCA - at the current site or elsewhere in the city - will become a social destination for young people, with facilities to keep them entertained and off the streets.

He said: "We need more because we are full. We have had 400 people use the 15 emergency beds in the last year.

"But we don't just want to build accommodation but make it into a destination for people in Milton Keynes."

He added: "We do have people we have to turn away. There isn't much capacity because we are full. Most nights we fill up."

The emergency beds can be used for 28 days and the average is 11, but the number of people being turned away each day is unpredictable.

"It's random – could be one, could be four. And the city is only getting bigger"

A website questionnaire, which says the YMCA's 30-year-old buildings 'are badly in need of replacement' asks people what they should replace it with, what is missing for young people in MK, what would inspire people and what would you like to be part of.

"Really Milton Keynes is a victim of its own success. It is a young, vibrant town, with people move there looking for work," said Mr Round.

"If they haven't got the skills they don't have a support network."

The YMCA is currently finishing a feasibility study into what could be done. Have your say at www.mysaymk.com.

Journey begins to restore church bells to old glory

BY LAURA HANNAM
laura.hannam@mk-news.co.uk

THESE ancient church bells are to be polished up to their former glory ready to ring across Olney once more.

The eight bells were lowered from the tower at the Church of St Peter and St Paul last week ready to be restored.

They were in use when anti-slavery campaigner and author of the hymn Amazing Grace John Newton was curate at the church in the late 1700s.

It took a bell hanger and four volunteers two days work to bring them down using hoists before they were loaded on to lorries and taken to Oxfordshire.

They will be restored by Whites of Appleton bell hangers, near Abingdon, before they are transported to London to be retuned at a foundry.

The bells will be returned to Olney at the end of this year and rehung alongside two new treble bells. The work is being done using funding from the Olney Bells Appeal, which was launched last October.

The scheme was awarded a grant of £35,500 from the Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF) in May.

It will also involve the replacement of a deteriorating wooden bell frame in the Grade One listed church.

The old frame, some of which is 2ft square, will be dated and pieces may be preserved in a museum as parts are believed to be as old as the tower, built in 1325.

There will be community activities to bring the history of the bells and the church to a wider audience and training opportunities aimed at providing a supply of bellringers to continue the heritage of English-style bell ringing.

New historical information will be placed in the church and cameras will be installed in the tower linked to monitors in the church to enable visitors to see the bells while they are being rung.

Mark Lancaster with children of the village waiting to open their new football pitch and (below) the grisly sight of bones of victims at the Genocide Memorial in Rwanda

Seeing first hand – the Rwanda miracle

THE country's MPs are often derided for having a long vacation over the summer months. The assumption is that, when away from the Commons, their constituency casework stops and they cease helping the public they represent. But Milton Keynes representative MARK LANCASTER chose to visit Rwanda to work to improve the lives of those blighted by genocide and poverty. Here he outlines his experiences:

BACK in April 1994, as the world watched and dithered, over 500,000 Rwandans were murdered in a genocide that shocked the world. Fourteen years on, the effects are still being felt in a society that is slowly coming to terms with its horrific past.

The tribal conflict between the ruling minority Tutsis and majority Hutus was not a new one. Provoked by a 'divide and conquer' policy by the then Belgian colonial power, Hutu resentment had simmered over into mass killings more than once in the 1960s and 70s after the Belgians had left.

But nothing would prepare the country for the genocide that was unleashed after the assassination of then Hutu President Juvénal Habyarimana in 1994. Some say he was killed by Tutsi rebels, others that it was Hutu extremists upset that he had signed a peace deal with the Tutsi. We may never know but nobody truly anticipated the 60 days of genocide that followed.

President Paul Kigami has come a long way since his days as the RDF Tutsi rebel leader that halted the genocide while the world watched. Possibly the only rebel force ever to have a humanitarian unit embedded in it, his efforts to unite the country have been remarkable. It is now illegal to ask a Rwandan their ethnic background, a South African style truth and reconciliation commission is nearing the end of its work and despite being from the minority, President Kigami's popularity continues to soar.

Today, tribal differences are being eroded subtly. Traditionally the Tutsi were the herdsmen with all the money and power that owning cattle brought, while the Hutus remained relatively poor farmers. Today, Rwanda's 'one cow project' aims to give every rural family a cow. The cow's manure is used to help grow vegetables and by selling the milk enough money can be earned to send children to school and even pay for health insurance. But perhaps crucially, the tribal distinction between those with cows and those without seems set to be gone forever.

It is impossible to travel the country without being reminded constantly of the genocide; from the refugee camps on the Congo border to the deeply shocking museums that put bodies on public display to remind the world of the time that we sat on our hands.

For my own part, much of my time was spent at a charity called 'SURF', a survivors charity aimed a providing housing for widows and orphans of the genocide on the outskirts of the capital Kigali. The simple huts with tin roofs laid out in neat lines provide the most basic of accommodation but are luxury compared to the UN refugee camps.

Our task was simple: to level a hillside covered in banana trees into a series of terraces and construct a community centre, outside amphitheatre, garden, playground and five-a-side football pitch – all in two weeks flat. It would have been relatively easy with heavy plant, but we took the option of boosting the local economy by employing local labour instead.

The image of literally tonnes of earth being moved by hundreds of picks and shovels will remain with me forever. Backbreaking work in the African sun, but the results were remarkable.

Twenty years experience as a Royal Engineer came in handy and while I struggled at times to explain the concept of a 'French drain' to the locals, the effort proved worthwhile as the terraces remained intact and the first rains drained away.

Midweek, along with other MPs I met the President and cheekily asked if he would come and open the community centre. The President is an ardent Arsenal supporter and I'm convinced that it was the mention of my five-a-side football pitch that swung the deal.

The grand opening came and with it literally thousands of people. The pitch had been finished a couple of days before but had proved so popular that we had to repaint the goalposts twice. Seeing the kids tearing about in their (briefly) immaculate white MK Dons football kits, kindly donated by Pete and Berni Winkleman, really was a sight to bring tears to the eyes. Even the President joined in with a brief kickabout, much to the horror of his security.

I am realistic enough to know that my brief spell in Rwanda made only the smallest of contributions but as I return home the memories will last forever, not least those of a country that against all the odds, seems somehow to be coming to terms with its turbulent past.

Plea for more potential adopters to come forward

IMAGINE being separated from your brother or sister and growing up in a different family, perhaps miles apart and never meeting again.

All too often that's what happens when siblings need to be adopted as there are not enough families willing to take a group, particularly of more than two children.

St Francis Children's Society, a voluntary adoption agency , is keen to hear from potential adopters who could consider parenting two, three or even more children – a ready made family.

At least 50 per cent of the children referred to The National Adoption Register need to be placed together with brothers and sisters.

Judy, who adopted three children who were split up when their first came into care, said: "They argue at times, they often all want mum's attention at the same time, but they always look out for one another and they are 'like peas in a pod'.

"I can't bear to think what they'd have lost if we'd only been able to adopt one or even two of them.

"They really do look alike and as they grow up more and more its important that they share the same past."

For more information visit the society's open evening on Wednesday, September 3 from 6.30pm until 8.30pm at 48, Newport Road, Woolstone, Milton Keynes, call 01908 572700 or visit www.sfcs.org.uk

Booty-ful record

THEY may have had to walk the plank but they got the booty in the end.

More than 100 pretend pirates stepped off a makeshift plank into a paddling pool on Monday at Shenley Leisure Centre in an attempt to set a new world record.

The most people to walk the plank is a record which, until this bank holiday, had not been attempted before.

But Shenley Church End is yet to have its place in the Guinness World Records confirmed officially, as the management has sent off the statistics for validation.

The event, which raised more than £200 for Willen Hospice, was also attended by MK Dons chairman Pete Winkleman, who opened the newly-refurbished Sportsman's Bar.

A treasure hunt, tug of war, bouncy castle, penalty shoot-out competition, face painting, refreshments and a live band added to the record-breaking atmosphere.

Leisure Centre Manager, Mark Taylor, said: "It was great to see Shenley Leisure Centre buzzing with families on Bank Holiday Monday.

"The atmosphere during the day was great and I would like to thank everyone for their kind support.

"No doubt next year will be even bigger and better – we just have to think of a new record to break."

Care flats to replace home

A CARE home for people with advanced dementia is to be pulled down and replaced.

The council's permission has been requested to demolish Westbury Care Home in Newport Pagnell and build an extension on a neighbouring facility.

A new development of 49 care flats will then be built on the site.

MHA Care Group decided to scrap plans to close the home, in Westbury Close, following a consultation with residents' relatives.

The group announced in July 2007 that the 20-year old facilities are out of date.

It has now submitted a planning application to Milton Keynes Council to build a 15-place extension and partly refurbish neighbouring Paganall Grange care home and for a new Housing with Care scheme on the Westbury site.

Anna Marshall-Day, a spokesman for MHA said: "If we are successful with our planning application, the first part of the project will be to build the 15 place extension.

"All the bedrooms will have en suite facilities including showers and the wing will also have its own lounge, dining room and assisted bathroom, as well as a garden available for residents to enjoy the outdoors in safety.

"On completion, residents will be able to transfer from Westbury care home into the new purpose-built extension.

"The well-being of residents remains a priority and support will continue throughout."

She added: "Work on the new Housing with Care scheme to replace the Westbury care home will begin thereafter extending the range of services available to older people."

■ MHA announced the possible closure of Westbury in 2007 alongside ExtraCare Charitable Trust, which planned to close Tweed House Nursing Home in Bletchley.

The home, which closed in July, is to be demolished.

A planning application has been submitted to the council by the Primary Care Trust to use the site for a new doctors' surgery.

A spokesman said: "The Whaddon House surgery will relocate to this new premises as their current premises is outdated and restricts their provision of service."

Paint vandals attack youth centre

A YOUTH centre was targeted by vandals who threw paint over its doors.

The offenders drenched the doors of the centre in Derwent Drive, Bletchley, and painted graffiti including the name 'LMS Army', on to the building.

Neighbourhood Specialist Officer, PC Becky Kay, said: "The neighbourhood police team wants to hear from anyone who has any information as to who has caused the criminal damage, witnessed the offence taking place or knows who recognises the tag."

The incident occurred between 10pm on Sunday, August 10 and 7am on Monday, August 11. Anyone with any information can contact PC Kay on 08458 505505.

Taxi rank robbery witnesses sought

A 26-YEAR-OLD man was robbed at a taxi rank after leaving a club.

The victim was leaving Revolutions in the city centre, between 2.45am and 3.30am on Thursday, when he was approached by three men who robbed his mobile phone.

They left him with bruising and swelling to the face. Anyone with information can contact Detective Sergeant Richard North on 08458 505505.

Man faces court on drugs rap

A 32-YEAR-OLD man will face trial after denying he smuggled three kilos of cocaine into the UK.

Gavin Archibald Thorburn, of Scatterill Close, Bradwell, was arrested at Birmingham international airport and charged with attempting to import cocaine on July 7.

He had flown into Birmingham from Nairobi, via Dubai. Last Tuesday Mr Thorburn was remanded in custody at Solihull Magistrates Court and his case was committed to Warwick Crown Court, for trial in October.

Mobile cop shop makes comeback

A MOBILE police station which was withdrawn from the rural communities four months ago is set to return.

Communities in Sherington and Olney were stripped of the service in May because there were no PCSOs available to staff it.

Since then Sherington Councillor Sam Potts has been highlighting the need for more policing in Milton Keynes' rural villages.

Cllr Potts said: "The police were totally wrong to remove it without consulting the communities.

"We need it because we have serious crimes in these communities and the culprits are never caught because the police are too far away."

The mobile policing unit was originally brought in to offer advice and reassurance to residents in the area but Sherington and Olney had to share a PCSO with Campbell Park and Oldbrook.

However, this week Thames Valley Police revealed that a new PCSO will be appointed in September and she will be dedicated to the rural communities.

Chief Inspector Andy Standen said: "The mobile police station was temporarily suspended in May this year because the member of staff looking after the station was unable to continue.

"Since then we have been actively looking to recruit a new officer to look after the station and PCSO Kirsty Barnes will take over in September.

"Our intention was always to recommence the service as soon as we had the resources in place.

"The mobile station is not an emergency response vehicle.

"It will tour the rural communities to provide advice and reassurance to residents and listen to any concerns or issues they may have."

If residents have any concerns about issues in their neighbourhood they can contact their neighbourhood police team on 08458 505505.

Post office closure consultation ends

BY LAURA HANNAM
laura.hannam@mk-news.co.uk

THE last signature has been collected as the consultation on the future of local Post Offices came to a close yesterday.

Campaigners must now wait with baited breath to see if their branch will be on the hit list, set to be released by mid-September.

In a last effort to save the Post Office in their constituency, Milton Keynes mayor Jan Lloyd and Cllr Reg Edwards spoke to people outside the Water Eaton branch on Friday.

It is one of a list of six branches earmarked for closure, which also includes Fishermead, Little Brickhill, Weston Underwood, Conniburrow and Fenny Stratford.

Cllr Edwards argues that the Water Eaton branch is valuable to the community and believes the Post Office has not taken account of the size of Bletchley and the amount of future development planned for the area.

"I think it is definitely one of the busiest post offices, people come in and out like flies," he said.

"This is so valuable to residents if it were to close it would be a crime."

Cllr Lloyd added: "I think its very short sighted, they haven't looked at the developments that are going to happen like Newton Leighs and the Stoke Road.

"They haven't looked at the fact there is a huge business community here. The queues at the so-called main Bletchley Post Office are out of the door and it can't take the excess work."

Job done: Jan Lloyd and Reg Edwards hand out leaflets at Water Eaton

Jill Hope, Liberal Democrat parliamentary candidate for MK North, has posted nearly 2,000 signatures collected across the city to Post Office.

Her letter to the consultation team draws attention to branches in Weston Underwood and Conniburrow, which have received "high levels of public protest."

She argues that the West Underwood branch is tiny and must be "the lowest cost Post Office among those marked for closure."

The council has commissioned a £30,000 business case to consider whether it, or parish councils, could save the Post Offices by taking over branches or setting up mobile post offices.

The papers will be presented to cabinet in September.

Tailor Geoff shows

Tailoring may been seen as one of the most archaic of professions. But reporter JESSICA CUNNIFFE discovered that the traditional trade is still thriving in 21st century Milton Keynes.

AS soon as you meet Geoff Souster, he has the measure of you.

The experienced cutter at the helm of Woburn-based business Souster and Hicks literally sizes up his customers – determining their proportions and thus which styles will flatter them – before he embarks on the art of 'building' them a suit.

This talent is testament to his 'eye', which, after 40 years as a tailor and 30 years running his own business, is as sharp as the needles he uses.

After all, this is the man who made Lenny Henry's colourful suits, Bob Monkhouse's suave garb and more recently crooner Michael Buble's get-up. He has also clothed Eric Morecambe and celebrities still make up five per cent of his market.

But the dapper Lutonian wants to defy the stereotypical image of tailors only catering for the rich and famous, while preserving their reputation for sartorial elegance.

Geoff left school at 15 and began a long apprenticeship before attending the London College of Fashion. Later he became the youngest ever National President of the Federation of Merchant Tailors.

He has now been based in Woburn for four years and lives above the shop with his wife Laura, a tailoress with 40 years' experience. His sons Wes and Scott work alongside them in the picturesquely situated shop.

Semi-bespoke suits start at £695 – meaning they are cut by computers – but you will pay double to have the whole thing hand made.

Despite these prices, Geoff denies that his is a dying trade, even in the face of the credit crunch.

> I don't think I will ever retire totally. I will still always want to cut. I love making people look good

Though the number of shops has diminished – 150 years ago there were four tailors in Woburn alone and now there are only a handful in the county – business is increasing.

In fact, it is new technology which is keeping the old profession alive. Since the advent of the internet, 20 per cent of the firm's business has come from online searches.

Their premises are more of an attraction than a shop, and going there is more like an event than shopping. For some it is that it is like a sweet shop of sophistication, where the mint humbugs are the luxury pinstripe material and the jars of colourful sherbets are the array of silk linings.

"We are still busy even though there's this problem with the economy," said Geoff.

"Part of the fun of having something made is you come to design it.

"We get people of all different ages and we get some real characters.

he can still cut it with the best in the 21st Century

"People's perception is that it's going to be old fashioned like Savile Row sometimes seems.

"We even have three ladies who fly down from Scotland. They couldn't find this quality of cloth off the peg."

In an age of homogeneity, Souster and Hicks crafts uniqueness.

"Every suit is different," Geoff said. And every day is devoted to the pursuit of creating sartorial perfection.

"I am cutting and fitting all the time," said Geoff.

"We usually have about ten suits on the go and each one is very time consuming, about 40 to 50 hours' labour.

"Sometimes I've been in here at 4.30am, when the sun's coming up. I love the cutting and the designing.

"See a man being dragged in here for a suit for his niece's wedding – I love those customers because they're a challenge."

And while many people's ambition is to have their name up in lights, Geoff's pride comes from knowing his will be inside the clothing of well-dressed people for years to come.

"I don't think I will ever retire totally. I will still always want to cut. I love making people look good."

Memories of a child's war

EVACUATIONS during the Second World War had a lasting impact on communities in Britain but one group is now fighting for a national memorial dedicated to the forgotten evacuees – the children. MK NEWS reporter ROB GIBSON speaks to city resident Gordon Abbott about his experiences as a six-year-old evacuee.

Country life: Gordon helping out on a farm during the war

Memories: Gordon with his wartime photographs

IN a quiet cul-de-sac at Bradwell, 75-year-old Gordon Abbott peruses a photo album filled with memories from his childhood.

But for Gordon's generation these images are more powerful than the typical childhood album.

They were taken during the evacuation of London during the Second World War and most are of miserable looking youngsters, bags packed, name tags drooped around their necks, boarding trains for unknown destinations.

While Nazi bombs threatened the cities the Government sought to protect future generations under a plan called 'Operation Pied Piper'.

Most of Britain's three million evacuees were children.

Archive reports from the Wolverton Express in April 1939 show the impact of the great evacuation on Milton Keynes.

One reads: 'Under the Evacuation Scheme 2,000 people have been allocated for billeting in Bletchley.

'A letter from the Minister of Health stated that in the event of an evacuation from London 4,500 people would be de-trained at Bletchley LMS station.

'The extra 2,500 would be transported to adjacent rural districts.'

Later reports indicate that evacuees would be sent to Wolverton, Stony Stratford and New Bradwell.

On Friday, September 8, 1939, 3,500 evacuees arrived at Wolverton railway station and in June, 3,100 arrived from Chingford, Essex.

Today, Gordon is a trustee of the Evacuees Reunion Association (ERA), a charity designed to make sure these people are never forgotten.

With about 2,000 members, their main goal is a national memorial in London to recognise the plight of the evacuees.

Gordon said: "There are numerous war memorials in London.

"One for women in war, one for British pilots, even one for animals in war, but nothing has been done to let people know about the thousands of children who were affected.

"We need a way to make sure future generations are reminded that many children suffered during the war.

"But it's not just about children, it's about anyone who participated."

Despite his personal involvement, there is nothing selfish about Gordon's quest.

On the contrary, his experience seems to have been life-changing for very positive reasons and he did not suffer in any physical sense. However, his evacuation at the age of six did change his life forever.

"The evacuation of children was not compulsory, it was entirely up to the parents," Gordon said.

"Your parents simply thought that in the interests of your safety it would be better for you to move to safer areas.

"We didn't know where we were going or who we were going to live with.

"Unfortunately a lot of children went to poor homes and were treated badly."

On June 16, 1940, Gordon was one of 650 children aged five to 14, who were taken from Plough Road School in Battersea, by tube, then train, from Waterloo Station to Bude in Cornwall.

Gordon said: "We were obviously rather upset, but from my point of view I didn't feel stressful.

"I was treating it as an adventure with my school friends, but other children had left behind brothers and sisters so they were very distressed."

In Bude they were examined by doctors before being dispersed to homes across the countryside, from farms to cottages.

Gordon was taken in by Mr and Mrs Rose, who ran a small farm and were already looking after another boy, from Bristol.

He was then passed to another family, a Mr and Mrs Newton, who he says "treated him extremely well".

Gordon became part of the family and was taught to milk the cows and help out on their farm – typifying the lifestyle adjustments for a child from London.

His parents mainly stayed in touch by letter, although they did visit when possible.

He said: "I was brought up as a farmer's son and only returned home at the end of the war, when I was 11.

"It was labour intensive but I was very happy there (on the farm) because I had 400 acres of freedom to roam where I wanted."

In fact, Gordon missed the countryside and his new family so much that he returned to Bude after he failed to resettle in Blitz-torn London. He stayed until 18, when he joined the RAF.

Since then he has worked in farm management before spending 25 years working for the police in Bletchley.

Gordon now lives with his wife, Christine, has three children and two grandchildren, but still finds time to share his memories with fellow evacuees who he has met through the ERA.

He visits the Imperial War Museum once a month to give talks to schoolchildren.

For more information about war time evacuation, to make a donation to the memorial fund, or for details about joining the ERA call 01777 816166 or log on to www.evacuees.org.uk.

Richard Ashcroft's solo set

BRIT POP legend Richard Ashcroft blew the crowds away with his acoustic performance at the county's biggest new festival.

The Last Days of Summer Festival was held for the first time at Stowe House Country Estate, near Silverstone on Bank Holiday Monday.

The weather held out all day and 6,000 people laid back on the grass as they were entertained by a string of top bands including headliners Supergrass, Athlete, Fun Lovin' Criminals, Black Kids, Young Knives and Royworld.

Richard Ashcroft played a solo acoustic set, performing Verve classics including 'Sonnet' and 'Bittersweet Symphony', as well as tunes from his solo albums such as 'Song for the Lovers' and 'Break the Night with Colour'.

newspaper, also included a five-tonne SNO!Slide built by Milton Keynes' SNO!Zone, a fun fair and a food and drink village.

The atmosphere was relaxed and playful as some members of the crowd built a human pyramid topped by a juggler between the performances.

MK NEWS reporter Laura Hannam even snapped up the chance to eat Richard Ashcroft's fish and chips, as his sound man offered the singer's unwanted food token in the queue ten minutes before the artist came on stage.

"He doesn't want to eat this close to the performance," he explained.

Festival organiser Paul Reaney said Ashcroft's set was a 'show-stopper'.

"Anyone who saw Richard Ashcroft on stage for an hour with just a guitar and a voice really engaging 6,000 people and pulling the event together would say that," he said.

Although the festival failed to sell all of its 8,000 tickets he hailed it as a 'brilliant' success and is already making plans for next year.

Rob Futrille of Royworld

"We want to keep it intimate and family based so we would like to grow by about 20 per cent, but no bigger.

"The biggest thing about next year will be how we top it.

"All the organisers went to bed thinking about it and we woke up talking about it.

"I think it is the start of something really exciting."

City GCSE results hit another record level

BY LAURA HANNAM
laurahannam@mk-news.co.uk

CITY students are celebrating after achieving Milton Keynes' best ever GCSE results.

The results, released on Thursday but still to be validated nationally, show that 61.7 per cent of students have achieved the equivalent of five or more A* - C grades.

This figure is a rise of nine per cent on last year's results for the city.

Sir Frank Markham enjoyed its most successful year ever after the percentage of students gaining five or more GSCEs at grades A*-C rocketed by 30 per cent.

It was also a record year for Radcliffe and Lord Grey schools which saw 13 per cent and 12 per cent increases in students achieving five or more A*-C grades respectively.

At Lord Grey, two students gained nine A* or A grades. Students there also did well in languages with 100 per cent receiving A*-C grades in Italian.

Denbigh's top ten students racked up 141 A* grades between them. The school was also celebrating its best year ever with 80 per cent of students achieving five or more A*-C grades.

Sarah Parker, Headmistress at Denbigh said: "I continue to be very proud of the achievements of Denbigh students, who have worked tirelessly for the last two years to secure the best results in the history of the school.

"This would not have been possible without the high quality of teaching and learning, which takes place at Denbigh on a daily basis, and the additional support for students provided by our staff."

Musical students at Leon proved they are in tune after 100 per cent of those taking GCSE Music were awarded A*-C grades.

The sportsmen and women weren't far behind with 97 per cent gaining A*-C grades in PE.

Ousedale broke their own school record with 29 students gaining eight or more A* or A grades. The school is celebrating its best ever results in all subjects, including a 71 per cent pass rate at A*-C in Maths.

At Shenley Brook End, 94 per cent of students achieved five or more A*-C grades. Eighteen students gained ten or more A*s or As, with one student gaining all A* and A grades.

There were some exceptional results at St Paul's with 78 per cent of students gaining five or more A*-C grades. Forty-four per cent achieved ten or more A*-C grades.

Seventy-five per cent of students at Walton High received five or more A*-C grades, an increase on last year. Stantonbury also saw good results with 22 A* grades and 57 A grades in Science. Over half the students who took a Young Apprenticeship (BTEC First Certificate) in Performing Arts at the school achieved a Distinction* or Distinction, which is the equivalent of two A*s and two A grades.

At Bury Lawn independent school 69 per cent of pupils gained five or more A* to C grades and the overall pass rate across all subjects was over 99 per cent.

John Moreland, Headmaster at Bury Lawn said: "Our formula of stage not age, means that pupils are able to take exams when ready and in this cohort, nine per cent of pupils had taken maths a year early.

"At Bury Lawn, we focus on the individual and this ensures all pupils are able to maximise their potential.

"Naturally there is always room for improvement, but as our recent inspection report identified, we have clearly started to achieve a winning formula and we shall continue to perfect our recipe.

"Well done to all our pupils."

Milton Keynes Council's lead member for children, Cllr Sandra Clark, said: "These results are fantastic. I would like to congratulate both students and teachers across the city for all their hard work and dedication.

"The results show we are improving every year, which is excellent.

"Raising school standards is a priority for the Milton Keynes Children's Trust and we intend to work hard to support schools and ensure that our students are given the best possible education so they can not just maintain, but surpass success levels every year."

Students taking GCSEs through Adult Continuing Education (ACE) were also celebrating as ACE maintained its overall pass rate of 91 per cent.

Results were particularly strong in languages. Seven students achieved an A* in Spanish and 100 per cent of those studying French gained an A or A*.

Transport firm picks up award

AN outstanding performance by TNT Express Services in the UK delivery market has been rewarded with two top awards at a ceremony honouring the cream of the British transport industry.

The express delivery giant, based at Northfield Drive, Northfield in Milton Keynes picked up the honours in the Environment and Training categories at the Motor Transport Awards – the Oscars of the UK transport sector.

The awards took TNT's haul to an unprecedented 26 in 22 years.

The coveted Environment Award came with high praise from the judges.

They praised TNT's 'comprehensive approach where being green is a company-wide objective, led from the top'.

Ground-breaking initiatives, including the launch of the world's largest fleet of zero emission electric vehicles, a programme to reduce vehicle mileage and fuel consumption for long-distance lorries and a scheme which gives company car drivers an incentive to buy greener cars also received praise.

Milton Keynes Depot General Manager Darren Batty said: "We have delivered another tremendous result, bringing our total number of Motor Transport awards to 26 – more than any other transportation organisation in the UK.

"It is particularly satisfying because these two awards endorse our continuous drive for improvement in all that we do and confirms we are conducting our business in the right fashion.

"We have demonstrated how passionate we are about the environment, a prime example being our 100-strong zero emission electric vehicle fleet.

"However, our most important 'asset' is our people and the Training Award is further testimony to our commitment to helping our employees achieve real satisfaction in their roles."

Hydrotherapy is derived from the Greek word for water healing.

Swimming for dogs has been proven just as beneficial for them as it is for us.

Swimming is a non-weight bearing exercise which reduces stress on the muscles and joints. It offers a safe, gentle approach to exercise and a successful therapy treatment for your dog.

No free lunch? – And now no free parking

BY JESSICA CUNNIFFE
jessica.cunniffe@mk-news.co.uk

AROUND 20 drivers are estimated to have been fined for parking in an area marked 'free parking'.

One of those is Amanda Brown, a child minder from Grange Farm, who parked in the area by Bannatyne's Health Club on Sunday, July 20, but did not pay and display because of the signs saying 'Free Parking Here Every Weekend'.

However, there had recently been smaller signs erected on another post saying the area was standard rate parking, though there were no purple lines on the road to indicate this.

When she received a ticket, Ms Brown paid the £30 fee fearing further fines, but contested it. She then received a letter saying 'The CPN was issued correctly to your vehicle. You failed to display a valid ticket in accordance with the parking regulations'.

It was only after a call from MK NEWS that Milton Keynes Partnership, which administers the car park through contractor Vinci Park, acknowledged the problem – promising to remove the signs and refund the estimated 20 drivers ticketed there between July 12 and August 3.

CONFLICTING SIGNS: Amanda Brown with children Harrison and Isabella at the spot where she received a parking ticket

Ms Brown said: "When I saw the ticket I thought that's a cheek – there are no lines and a sign that says it's free."

A Milton Keynes Partnership spokesman said: "We apologise to Ms Brown and any other car park users affected by the conflicting signage on Avebury Boulevard for the confusion and inconvenience this may have caused.

"In line with parking policy in Milton Keynes this location is now a pay and display area at weekends.

"Unfortunately at the time Ms Brown parked there the original free parking stickers had not been removed by our contractors, although the mandatory signs and ticket machine software had been altered."

A Vinci Park spokesman said: "Since being made aware of the problem, these notices have been cancelled and weekend enforcement will not take place on this site until the problem with conflicting signage has been resolved."

If you were caught out by the contradictory signs please call 01908 672760.

MUSIC REVIEWS

THE SHOCK OF THE LIGHTNING

Oasis

WHEN I heard that Oasis were coming back, I could barely disguise my apathy.

If you ask me, they've been doing little more than simply go through the motions since Be Here Now, and that was a very long time ago now.

However, it would be rude to dismiss their new single out of hand, although it would also be very easy, so I've had a listen. I do these things so you don't have to, you see.

To my great surprise, this is actually not bad at all. The daft thing is that they haven't changed things around too much. The drums are still getting hammered, the guitars still sound like they're being thrown around the studio, Liam still sounds like Liam, but there's a bit more going on here than that.

For one thing, either there's a drum solo halfway through or the drum kit was dropped downstairs and somebody was in the right place to record it.

For another, there's background noises dotted around all over the shop – so much so that I can guarantee you'll hear something new the second and third time you hear this song.

Fair play to Oasis, they've come back with something good. If the rest of the album's as uncommercial as I've heard it is, that could well be worth a peek after all.

SPIRALLING

Keane

OH, now come on, this is ridiculous. I mean, seriously, what the hell is this?

It sounds a lot like a tribute to the bands of the early 80s, like Orange Juice and A Flock Of Seagulls and if it wasn't played on huge synthesizers that last saw use on The Old Grey Whistle Test then it damn well should've been.

There are high-pitched 'oohs' in the chorus and there's even a spoken word bit in the middle, a la ABC's The Look Of Love.

This isn't Keane, it can't be. This lot sound like they're having fun. The thing is though, it really is them.

This really is their comeback single, it's mental, it's stupid, it's retro, and somehow this is questionably the greatest thing this band has ever done.

I just don't understand it, I can only put it down to some sort of mental instability on my part. Either that, or I woke up this morning in a parallel world where Tim Westwood is a hard-hitting political commentator and the Football League actually know what they're doing. Well, I've just checked the League table and Luton are still so far adrift of everyone else they've been lapped, so unless there's a TV show called Pimp My Newsnight that I wasn't previously aware of, the rest of the world is exactly as it was, but Keane have changed.

And Oasis too, now we're on the subject. Those two bands bringing out decent singles are events in themselves, but at the same time? That can't be a coincidence. There are dark forces at work here.

THE GEEKS WERE RIGHT

The Faint

THE Faint are one of many bands who've been pottering around for years without ever quite getting the level of success they deserve, and unfortunately that's something that's unlikely to change with this song. Think of a bizarre vision of the future, sort of an electro riposte to Busted's Year 3000 (and a hell of a lot better), and that's what you get here. It's under three minutes in length, so it doesn't rattle on and on but it's not a pop song by any stretch of the imagination. I like it though and that's good enough for me.

HELLBOY II: THE GOLDEN ARMY

HELLBOY is a giant red spawn of the underworld monster good-guy who due to the odd quirk of fate now helps out the US Government in tackling bad guy monsters, along with the help of a few odd creature companions.

Hellboy II: The Golden Army is not quite a superhero film, nor is it quite the X files, nor is it Men in Black or Lord of the Rings, although it has elements of all four.

What it is though is fabulous.

It's director Guillermo del Toro is fast becoming the biggest name in directors and here he shows a fantastic imagination and a great grasp for storytelling.

The film is packed with action and fabulous creatures, places and monsters, but what it has more than anything is heart.

Underneath the tentacles and devil horns and menagerie of monsters this movie has a big, big heart. You really come to care about Hellboy and his group of freakish friends and the best bit involves him singing Barry Manilow songs after too much beer.

Anyway having only seen films over the last few weeks that I end up saying bad things about, it makes a nice change to really be able to big something up to you. Hellboy is the most human film you'll see this year.

Get your coats and horns on and get to the cinema right now.

THE PITZ 660392

THE BAND BLITZ COMPETITION 2008
Friday, August 29
IN its tenth and final year The Pitz Band Blitz continues with its fifth and final heat, four more top local bands will be hitting the stage this Friday.

After This Plague, Incendia, Zeitgeist and AlterSketch battle it out this week. With Rise Inside, Stanislav, Acacia Close and The Vision already through, who will win the last spot in the Grand Final?

AFTER THIS PLAGUE are a five piece hardcore/metal band, formed in January this year, they offer a more melodic hardcore approach. INCENDIA also a five piece hard rock/metal band. Combining catchy yet technical guitar work, powerful and diverse vocals and incredible drum patterns. ZEITGEIST – yet another five piece outfit but that is the similarities to the above end. Zeitgeist means 'the spirit of the age'. Interpret this as you will. The name was inspired by the Smashing Pumpkin's album. ALTERSKETCH – this alternative rock four man outfit complete the line-up in what is the most highly contested band show in the area.

One band from each heat goes into the Grand Final on Friday, September 12.
Tickets £5.50.
Doors 7.30pm.

NEAR OR FAR?

The University of Northampton (20 miles)

Offering 250 courses and catering for around 10,000 students on its two campuses, this institution is just up the M1. It is particularly renowned for its School of Health, training many of the local nurses and midwives and its School of Education.

Durham University (220 miles)

Slightly further up the M1(and the A1) is the red brick university which is split into 16 colleges. Durham is set amid picturesque scenery with three faculties offering a wide range of courses, from social sciences to humanities and science.

? DID YOU KNOW?
Rent for students in Leeds, Glasgow and Manchester is, on average, half that in London

Do your homework

WITH so many 'good university guides' and all the literature available on the 100-odd institutions in the UK, the art of picking a university has almost become a discipline in itself.

A good place start is with the website www.unistats.com. This will tell you the level of student satisfaction and the chance of getting a job – for example the fact that 86 per cent of students are satisfied with Biology at Plymouth, but only 33 per cent of them have a chance of landing a graduate job after six months.

Another site, www.push.co.uk, describes itself as 'the ruthlessly independent university guide' and proves that with its league tables with a difference. These compare everything from the cost of a pint to the average student debt.

Meanwhile The Times gives a meticulously-researched, impartial insight into each institution with its university guide (www.timesonline.co.uk/universityguide) which is considered the Bible of selecting where to study.

Go and investigate

REMEMBER: prospectuses are brochures - they are trying to sell you something.

Many graduates remember turning up at freshers' week only to find that their halls of residence were a grotty 1960s tower block - far from the hotel-esque building on the front cover of the glossy guide. That is why visiting your potential choices is worthwhile.

Most places hold open days - contact them to see when these are - but you can probably get someone to show you round if you can't make the dates they offer. See what facilities they have to offer, what the campus is like, the state of the accommodation, how far this is from town and what the area is like. Taking a trip there will also give you an idea of how far it is from home, as for some being several hours away is impractical (for others, though, it is preferable).

Get on course for the right course

FIND out what each course entails as they may be completely different from one uni to the next. So look at the modules that are available, get a feel for the amount of free choice or compulsory options and try to gauge what would most suit your interests.

It is also worth finding out how many 'contact hours' you will have on each course as this is not always divulged in the prospectus. English and history tend to have the least taught time - often as little as four hours of lectures or seminars a week. Other subjects, maths and the sciences for example, often have more taught time and less self-study.

Bear in mind that some universities are known for certain courses. For example, the University of East Anglia has a brilliant reputation for creative writing, while Loughborough is renowned for its sporting credentials.

And you may consider taking dual honours courses, where you simultaneously study two subjects (as long as the combination is offered by the university). There is a particularly large choice of these degrees at Keele University in Staffordshire, where 90 per cent of students take joint honours courses.

Campus or city?

YOU also may have a preference of campus life over city living - or vice versa. Universities in London are examples of city universities, being spread out rather than contained on one site, as York and Warwick are.

*The cost of living. Consider that the rent varies between universities depending on which part of the country you go to. Unsurprisingly London is the most expensive, with rent averaging £100 a week. In contrast, Leeds, Glasgow, Manchester, Lancashire, Sheffield and Northumbria all average £50 per week, according to a recent study by HSBC.

? DID YOU KNOW?
Last year 23,000 GCSE and A-level grades were changed on appeal

Didn't get the results you wanted?

ONE piece of paper, pulled out of one small envelope can seal your fate. And it can go either way, with a few small letters on there determining whether you will be celebrating or commiserating - and even replanning your future.

But if you didn't get the results you were hoping for this summer, all is not lost, and you have plenty of options to consider.

■ Retake your exams. It may not seem like something you feel like going through again, but you can retake your exams, often in the following January.

■ Phone your university. If you did not get the results your conditional offer stipulated, phone the universities anyway and ask if they will give you a place - they often will.

■ Clearing – the word 'clearing' may have connotations of failure - sounding more like a clearance sale of the unwanted goods than an opportunity to get a place at a decent university. In fact, last year more than 38,000 students received places through clearing, and some even ended up on better courses than they had chosen originally. It can all be arranged through the UCAS website, www.ucas.com.

■ Appeal – last year, 23,000 GCSE and A-level grades were changed on appeal. If you narrowly missed that vital grade which was going to be your ticket to the university you set your heart on - and you have already checked they won't accept you with it - get an urgent remark. You will have to pay, but it may just be worth it. And call the Government's exam results helpline on 0808 100 8000 if you need advice.

Anyone can be The Apprentice

WATCHING Sir Alan Sugar wave his firing finger at business hopefuls on BBC1's hit programme The Apprentice gives an impression of apprentices as suit-clad salespeople who ruthlessly vie for top City jobs.

But the word apprenticeship in fact refers to a wealth of trainee positions, where you could end up in any one of hundreds of diverse guises. As an apprentice you could don construction gear when training to work in the building trade, wear firefighters' attire on route to learning the life-saving role, or even be armed with scissors and combs on your way to learning the trade of hairdressing.

In an age of increasingly pricey tuition fees, this prospect of earning and learning at the same time as you train for a trade could not seem more tempting.

And there are thousands of people doing it - currently around 240,000 in England alone, whose traineeships last anything between one and five years in many areas - from ceramics, animal care, food and drink manufacturing, aviation, and bakery to photo imaging, insurance, hairdressing and accounting.

The only requirement for you to become an apprentice is that you are not in full-time education and that you have a passion and dedication to your chosen career.

There are various ways of securing an apprenticeship. You can call the national apprenticeships helpline on 08000 150 600 to request further information on the areas of work you are interested in, after which you will be put in touch with learning providers or employers near you, who may have suitable vacancies. Or you could go straight to the employers - whether they are advertising or are just known to take on apprenticeships - to see if there are any vacancies.

Milton Keynes College has 18 years' experience in offering apprenticeships, with more than 500 people taking advantage of the 13 subject areas they have on offer. Give their dedicated apprenticeship recruitment team a call on 01908 684416 or 684331 for a chat about the options that could suit you.

The college offers two types of apprenticeships: level 2 qualifications which cover an NVQ, Key Skills and Technical Certificate and advanced apprenticeships that offer level 3 qualifications - and even can lead to progression to level 4 foundation degrees. Though the college cannot promise to find you work, it works with you to find it - and encourages local employers to take on apprentices. You are then appointed an assessor who will guide you through the apprenticeship and you will meet with once every 12 weeks. Pay varies but your employer will pay you no less than £80 a week.

■ If you think this might be the route for you, have a look at www.apprenticeships.org.uk. If you are under the age of 19 the Connexions service can also be of help - go to www.connexions-direct.com

Earn and learn

There are many ways that you can continue learning, even when you are embroiled in the day-to-day strains of life of work, family and hobbies.

Milton Keynes has an array of options – whether you want to spend six years studying for a degree in your spare time, or six weeks learning how to dance.

Opening doors.

YOU may not realise but Milton Keynes is home to the most popular university, with more than 160,000 undergraduates - more students than any other institution in the country.

The Open University, the first distance learning institution of its kind, offers 580 courses in 12 subject areas.

Most of these are studied part-time, with 70 per cent of the OU's students concurrently working full-time. It may be that you are already in a job but want to enhance your knowledge and skills, or even add to your abilities in order to be promoted.

Luckily more than 50,000 organisations have sponsored staff on OU courses. And its teaching record is up there with the best in academia – York, the London School of Economics and Cambridge.

Evening classes

EVENING classes are no longer the stereotypical watercolours and basket weaving sessions they once were.

Nowadays in Milton Keynes, with the Adult Continuing Education (ACE) courses run by Milton Keynes Council for anyone over the age of 16, there are hundreds of courses run at 50 city venues – lasting several hours or several weeks. More than 7,000 students this year will sample the array of courses offered, from perfecting their Morris dancing to learning beginners' Dutch.

ACE CLASSES

These are some of the less traditional evening courses offered by ACE

Mind the gap

EDUCATION education education. And more education.

Sometimes the inevitable succession of SATS, GCSEs, A-levels, degree and, increasingly, postgraduate study makes you feel that learning is interminable.

But there are other ways to learn - and you can even enhance your CV and gain new experiences by swapping the classroom or the lecture theatre for more exotic locations.

Gap years are more flexible than some people think, and they do not even have to be for a year - or the expensive stint of globetrotting that some people may assume it to be.

Invaluable advice on how to choose what to do with your time out can be found at www.yearoutgroup.org. And here are just some of the ways that you can visit far flung destinations, travel the world, make a difference to other people - and earn money at the same time.

TEFL

SOME people want to combine doing something worthwhile, which will look good on their CV, help them learn another language, get abroad and even help other people. Teaching English as a foreign language – or TEFL – ticks all of these boxes.

Placements can last a few months, or an entire career. You are often placed in a private language school, so the people are eager to learn, and accommodation is usually supplied by the school. Graduates are preferred and you need some form of teaching certificate, though these can be taken intensively and equip you for where you are going to work. Vacancies and information about how to get involved can be found at www.tefl.com.

WWOOFing

WORLD WIDE Opportunities on Organic Farms means just that: giving you opportunities all over the world to live and work on organic farms. For anyone interested in the environment, or with a desire to get back to nature, this is a great prospect. It works as an exchange - host farms and smallholdings give you food, accommodation and opportunities to learn about organic lifestyles, and in return you volunteer. The experience can be arranged via www.wwoof.org, who can set you up with hosts in many places anywhere and everywhere, from Morocco to Bolivia.

VSO

SOME people go beyond the idea of going abroad to do a bit of backpacking for something slightly more noble.

The well-known charity, Voluntary Service Overseas (VSO), recruiting volunteers from the age of 18 to 75 to go to one of 30 countries - usually in Africa or Asia - to work on projects that can last between one month and two years.

For example, the Global Xchange project is for 18 to 25-year-olds, who spend spend three months working in an exchange country and three months working in the UK.

The VSO pays for your training, visa, travel, medicine checks, accommodation and injections, and asks you to raise just £600 for the experience. In the past this has taken people to Nigeria, Nepal, Ghana and Bangladesh.

Go to www.vso.org.uk for details.

Ski seasons

THESE are a popular way of combining a cool experience with making money and friends.

There are several jobs to be done in resorts all over the world: from chalet hosting, to cooking, being a nanny or handyman, ski instructing, cleaning, being a chambermaid and bar work. Hours often leave time for skiing and socialising in the evening.

Though the pay for chalet hosts is not brilliant - ranging from £80 per week to £200 - equipment hire, insurance, accommodation and food are usually included.

You had better get your skis on to snap up a place when companies start recruiting in May, though jobs come up at other points in the year, often after Christmas. Check out www.natives.co.uk to see what jobs and advice they have to offer.

A change of direction

ARE you bored at work and feel like doing something different? Have you ever wished you could swap your computer keyboard for a piano?
Or put down your paintbrush and pick up some heftier tools?
More and more people are retraining nowadays – and even more than that are contemplating a change in career.
But it should not be a daunting prospect. If you have no idea what qualifications are needed for retraining or how you would fund it, Learn Direct's advice line can help you out. Give an advisor a call on 0800 100900.

PROFILE ONE
PLUMBER

AS a plumber you've got the nation's water supply, sanitation and warmth in your hands.

It is a vital job and a popular one too - in fact, the most calls made to Learn Direct's advice line are people asking how they can become a plumber.

You can expect to start on a salary of between £16,500 and £21,000 - which can rise to £35,000 with experience.

Qualifications required include the full NVQ Level 2 and 3 in Mechanical Engineering Services in plumbing, and in order to complete these you must get a job or placement.

Then you can be well away on a number of duties - installing and repairing water supplies, working on heating systems and drainage, servicing gas and heating systems and fixing domestic appliances.

■ To learn more about the job go to www.iphe.org.uk or call the SummitSkills careers advice line, 08000 688336 - which is actually based in Milton Keynes - for guidance on training and careers in the building services engineering sector.

PROFILE TWO
PROBATION WORKER

WORK in the social sector is the basis for a lot of the enquiries received by Learn Direct's advice line.

And for those who have an interest in the criminal justice system and want to work with offenders then being a probation worker is ideal.

The job involves interviewing offenders, advising magistrates and judges on suitable sentences, working with prisoners to assist them in the journey from prison back into the community, and helping the victims of crime.

The probation service takes people on as trainees - the number of GCSEs or A-levels required, if any, depends on your age - and particularly favours people who have done voluntary work in the past.

During employment trainees study for the Diploma in Probation Studies (DipPS) for two years, though this system is currently under review.

■ For more details visit www.skillsforjustice.com.

There may be many successful people who have got a degree. But equally there are many that do not seem to have done too badly without one. Not having a degree does not seemed to have hindered these success-stories in running the country, revolutionising computer technology, being retail tycoons or firing people on the telly.

JERSEYLIFE

View across St Aubin's harbour with the Boat House Restaurant and Bar

Leaving Bergerac behind

JERSEY is like a pretty woman. She tempts you with her beauty, thrills you with her fiery heart but underneath her tranquil charm lies a simmering passion for life.

The island's split personality might be because of its history or maybe its location.

Just an hour's flight away it is truly English but sitting only 14 miles off Frances' coast Jersey has Gallic blood running in its veins.

Trying to shake off its 1980s Bergerac image Jersey has lots to offer.

The get up and go sandy beaches on the west coast are a sporting paradise and a real surfers hang-out.

Whether you test your abilities against waves on a surf board,canoe or windsurfer – the choice is yours.

Elsewhere, bays offer the chance to kite-surf, jet ski, water ski, take a banana boat ride or even just have a swim, do what you wish, you will not be disappointed.

Those who like to keep their toes out of the water can get their thrills with motorised sand racing or blo-karting, options that will get the adrenaline going and leave room to just laze on the beach.

There is a feel about Jersey that makes walks along the northern cliffs a joy – the rugged outcrops, picturesque harbours,stunning bays all add up to terrific days out and when you consider the island is just nine by five miles all this is just a few minutes apart.

If, like me, your choice may be a little more historical then trips to the 13th century Mont Orgueil Castle that overlooks Gorey Harbour is a must as is the chapel of Notre Dame de la Carte built in the 12th century on the Neolithic site at La Houge Bie.

Blo-karting on St Ouen's Bay beach

One overwhelming undertone of Jersey history is its occupation during the second world war.

All along the shorelines are the 'Jersey Towers' a constant reminder of those years that Germany held this little piece of British soil. They are defiant and stark as are the collection of German fortifications.

The most revealing of these are The Jersey War Tunnels. They are a must to visit to gain a sense life on the island at that time.

St Helier, which is the hub of the island, is undergoing a transformation.

It has a range of night-life that any modern city would be proud of and a busy, vibrant feel during the day.

In the heart of this is The Royal Yacht a choice of hotel that you would not regret, it has great food, newly refurbished restaurants and bars, a 'to die for' spa as well as having one of the town's busiest night spots.

A 30-minute walk along the bay you come to St Aubin with its lovely harbour.

Perched on the edge of this is The Boat House. Its location is a joy and sitting in the Sails Brasserie gives you wonderful views in all directions.

Proud of the fact that it sources nearly all its food locally its seafood menu is fantastic and enhanced with produce from around the island.

Yes, Jersey is a pretty women and one I would love to take out on another date.

New cash set to grow consultant

GLOBAL sales consultant Miller Heiman has announced a change in ownership following investment from Sterling Investment Partners, a leading middle-market private equity firm, and the Miller Heiman management team.

The company, whose EMEA (Europe, Middle East and Africa) head office is based in Milton Keynes, has also received investment from GE Capital, Madison Capital and York Street Capital Partners.

"Given today's difficult capital markets, we are proud to announce that, through our track record of producing financial results, Miller Heiman was able to attract a high-calibre pool of investors that align well with our growth objectives," said Sam Reese, president and CEO of Miller Heiman.

"In today's challenging economy, smart companies continue to focus on improving the effectiveness of their sales force as well as solidifying relationships with their key clients. We are fortunate to work with client organisations that recognise the value of investing in their sales organisations."

These new investments will allow Miller Heiman to commit

'High calibre': Sam Reese, boss of Miller Heiman

greater financial resources to corporate growth initiatives and expand its global footprint. Currently, Miller Heiman has corporate offices in the United States, the United Kingdom and Australia and offers programs in more than 30 countries.

According to Sterling partner, Doug Newhouse said: "We believe Miller Heiman is an outstanding company with great potential to continue the momentum that has been consistent under Sam Reese's eight years of leadership."

Prior to the change in ownership, Miller Heiman was held by Leeds Equity Partners, LLC, who acquired the company in 2005 in a leveraged buyout transaction.

Under the ownership of Leeds, Miller Heiman extended its global reach by purchasing an Australia-based sales consultancy, consistently exceeded revenue goals and expanded its solution suite through various new products and technology enhancements.

"I am proud to see our company exceed expectations and benefit our investors, clients, employees and partners who have helped make this growth possible," Reese said.

"I look forward to the opportunities this new investment will open up to help propel the company to new heights."

Lynda Marston, Miller Heiman's director of marketing and sales operations for the EMEA region added: "The new investments create huge potential for growth outside of the United States and we are excited by the opportunities this brings."

Xscape big screen ads are beating the credit crunch

THE credit crunch – what's that?

That's the question being asked by Georgia Baillie, managing director of Screen Media, a new Milton Keynes-based TV production company.

The company produces ten to 30-second commercials for use on 40 inch plasma screens in all the X-Leisure complexes.

Another company not hit by the credit crisis is Northwood, a property letting agency led by Davinia Box and currently running a TV campaign on the many screens at Xscape.

Northwood's ads went live on the screens just two weeks ago and they were bombarded with enquiries, leaving Davinia delighted.

She said: "We wanted to push our guaranteed rental income scheme and the visual ads have had such a dramatic impact especially as some of the screens are three dimensional and production costs are nominal."

Georgia Baillie and Davinia Box at the Xscape building

There are now close to 7.5 million people visiting the X-scape.

Distribution firm hits ton in training qualifications

MORE than 100 employees have successfully taken an NVQ qualification at Culina Logistics as part of its training and development initiative in association with Milton Keynes College.

The multi-temperature food and drink distribution specialist has seen certificates awarded in a range of subjects, including general warehousing, business administration, team leading and management across a number of levels.

Martin Butler, logistics manager at Culina's Whitehall Avenue site, said: "We recognise that people development is paramount to the success of a growing business such as ours and have been supporting employees to achieve the qualifications for a number of years now."

Jane Hyde-Walsh, NVQ assessor at Milton Keynes College added: "NVQs are a major benefit in large organisations in helping to benchmark standards and point employees towards the best working practice."

The ultimate educational experience

THERE is just a month to go before the city's new University Centre opens its doors to students and staff.

The £7.5m centre, developed by Milton Keynes College, English Partnerships and SEEDA, in a groundbreaking collaboration, will be offering courses in the creative industries, business management and marketing, accountancy and finance, computing and information technology, purchasing, supply and logistics, teacher training, social science and psychology, counselling, health, nursing and social care and sport.

The centre at 200 Silbury Boulevard, Central Milton Keynes is in the process of being totally refurbished to the highest standards.

The centre will include the impressive CISCO IT Academy, state-of-the-art graphic design studio and the stunning atrium gallery.

Leading academic and former Cambridge University Fellow, Dr Keith Straughan, who was behind the development of the first MRI body scanner, has been appointed as vice principal.

He said: "The centre will be a tremendous asset to the thriving progressive city of Milton Keynes.

"It will be a focal point for 21st century higher education and will benefit a huge number of people who will now be able to study at university level in MK."

The centre was recently visited by the Minister of State for Lifelong Learning, Further and Higher Education, Bill Rammell who gave his seal of approval to the city's new university centre saying 'this is just the sort of imaginative model we need to make a real impact'.

He also commended the determination of UCMK to establish a credible research base from its early days.

The arrival of higher education in the city has also been welcomed by business people as a crucial development in stopping the city suffering from 'brain drain'.

Milton Keynes College will be working in partnership with other higher education partners to deliver courses at the centre.

The University Centre is now in the process of recruiting staff.

Phillip Catcheside, recruitment specialist at Milton Keynes College said: "It is absolutely essential that the highest levels of personal service are in place to complement the outstanding facilities at the new Centre.

"Milton Keynes College has a wealth of experience in finding and developing the very best teaching, management and support staff, and will be responsible for the ongoing recruitment at the centre.

"It's simple, you use effective recruitment methods to find the very best people, continue to provide them with the tools they need, and they will provide the ultimate educational experience.

"We are looking for people who can share in the vision and who want to play a major part in ensuring the centre plays a key role in the future of Milton Keynes.

"There is no doubt that Milton Keynes is now firmly on the map, and this is an exciting time to be part of raising the city's profile even further."

■ If you want to be part of this exciting new beginning, then visit www.mkcollege.ac.uk or call Phillip Catcheside direct on 01908 637023.

Pickering left to rue premature take-off

OLYMPIC GAMES

BY SIMONE CORGAN
simone.corgan@mk-news.co.uk

BEIJING appeared to be a big place with nowhere to hide last week as Craig Pickering took the blame for Team GB's disqualification from the 4x100 metres relay.

A nightmare handover of the baton between Marlon Devonish and Pickering cost GB a place in the Olympic final.

Pickering, who was knocked out of the 100 metres individual event a week earlier, watched Devonish approaching as he was set to embark on the final leg of the semi-final.

Unfortunately, for the Marshall Milton Keynes Athletics Cub runner, he was too eager and set off too early leaving Devonish with a lot of ground to make up to complete the changeover within the designated zone.

Spotting his mistake Pickering glanced over his shoulder in horror and began to slow to receive the baton. But by the time Pickering had the baton in his hand he had crossed the yellow line which made the exchange illegal.

The team has spent the last four years building up to the race where they had hoped to cling on to their Olympic Gold won in Athens.

With a coach designated to the relay teams Great Britain were expected to add to the medal tally whether it be gold, silver or bronze in the event.

But they didn't get chance to defend their title and the four men anxiously waiting at the side of the track discovered they had been disqualified from the event.

Honest Pickering, 21, did not shy away from his critics as he admitted his error had ended the team's chances.

"I cost the country a medal. I've let myself down, I've let the team down, I've let the country down. It's all my fault. The guys will say it's not, but I accept full responsibility.

"Unfortunately for the next four years I am going to be remembered as the guy who messed up.

"There's a check mark and you go when the athlete crosses it. I don't usually have much problem doing that, but I went a bit early. We would have won a medal for sure."

Time running out: Pickering approaches the yellow line still without the baton in hand

He has already received criticism from former runner Darren Campbell, who won gold in the event alongside Devonish in Athens, but Pickering has four years to make amends and do his country proud in London 2012.

SPORTSSHORTS

Golfing prodigy breaks course record

MK has its own Tiger Woods and it's not Ian Poulter. Instead a 17-year-old is making a name for himself on the golf circuit.

Ben Woolford, a member of the Milton Keynes Golf Club, shattered the Abbey Hill Golf Centre's course record. Ben recorded a spectacular five under par round of 66 on the Abbey Hill course after he picked up six birdies in 13 holes.

In the past two-and-a-half years Ben has lowered his handicap by 26 shots. Speaking about his achievement Ben said: "I thought I needed to birdie the last hole to break the course record, but I feel amazing right now with this achievement. It is nice to see all my hard work paying off."

Poulter gambles on Ryder Cup wild card

IAN POULTER has opted out of this week's Johnnie Walker Championship and will now have to rely on the captain's pick to compete in the Ryder Cup.

Instead Poulter will play in America in a bid to reach the final two FedEx Cup play-off events.

He said: "I have called (captain) Nick Faldo and told him of my decision and hope that my performance so far will earn one of his two wild card picks."

It is a risky decision by the Woburn golfer as he faces stiff opposition for the wild card spot from the likes of Colin Montgomerie, Darren Clarke and Paul Casey.

Seniors on course for Woburn event

THIS weekend Woburn Golf and Country Club plays host to the European Seniors Tour.

The game's big names, including 2006 Ryder Cup captain Ian Woosnam, will be on show as they compete on the Dukes Course.

For Woosnam the Woburn venue holds great memories – it was the scene of his British Masters triumph 14 years ago where he clinched the crown by four strokes.

And he is on course to land the John Jacobs trophy, given to the leading player on the Seniors Tour Order Merit, as he leads Germany's Bernhard Langer by £30,000. The total prize fund for the Woburn event, which starts on Friday, August 29 and finishes on Sunday, August 31, is £250,000. Tickets can be purchased at the gate priced at £10 per day, and £20 for the full three days.

Loyal Lions skipper signs up again

MK LIONS captain Dru Spinks has signed for another season. The 6ft 5in England International is coming off his best ever figures and led his team to capture the BBL Cup.

Spinks, 28, who made his debut in 1996 when the team was in Hemel Hempstead and has only ever played for the Lions, is the most loyal player in the BBL and is entering his fifth year as the team's captain.

IF this was the performance Roberto Di Matteo can get out of his team every week then MK Dons fans are in for a treat.

They went to an unbeaten Huddersfield Town full of hope but not even the most optimistic Dons follower could have imagined taking three points with such ease at the Galpharm Stadium.

Assistant boss Eddie Newton described it an a 'fantastic performance' as MK Dons picked up their first win on the road of the new campaign.

He said: "We keep emphasising to the boys that they're good enough to compete in this league, good enough to play their football and it's now starting to show.

"It was a fantastic performance, we competed well in both halves and when the game settled down we got to play a little bit of the football we know we can play. We've got a very good squad that plays together and if we can add a couple more before the close of the transfer window, we're confident we can have a good go at this league."

Jude Stirling and Peter Leven opened their accounts for the season while Sam Baldock added to his tally during the Dons' impressive display.

New addition Flavien Belson made his debut in English football with ease, looking like he had played alongside Leven in the centre of the park for years.

The Dons were a little quiet in the early exchanges and if anything Stirling's opener on the 17th minute came against the run of play.

The Terriers were foolish enough to give Stirling space at the far post and he took full advantage by sending a thumping header from Mark Wright's corner into the net.

If the goal had shocked the home side, it certainly brought Di Matteo's men to life.

The Dons did what they do best on the road, they absorbed the pressure Huddersfield were piling on then charged down the other end in lightning quick breaks.

The best of which saw the Dons double their lead seven minutes before the break.

Baldock stole possession from Robbie Williams, spread the ball to Wright on the wing who was then presented with plenty of options as the Dons lead a five-on-one attack at Huddersfield's goal.

Wright opted to send the ball Leven's way and he duly found the back of the net.

Terriers' Andy Butler had appealed for a penalty when he collided with Willy Gueret in the box and he was further frustrated when the goalie was on hand to stop his nod down.

The Frenchman was called back into action in the second half to smother Derby-loanee Liam Dickinson's header while Chris Lucketti failed to squeeze in the follow-up.

As Huddersfield looked for a route back they shot themselves in the foot as they allowed Baldock room to manoeuvre.

The 19-year-old striker timed his run to beat the offside trap and grab the Dons' third of the afternoon, and his first in the league.

Stan Ternent's Terriers did get the final say in the game as Gary Roberts sneaked a late consolation.

Although denying the Dons a clean sheet, Huddersfield's 83rd minute strike was not enough to steal the points from the Dons' grasp.

Ince close to completing Andrews move to Rovers

KEITH Andrews is expected to complete his move to Blackburn Rovers in the next week.

The midfielder has missed the Dons' last two matches, and did not travel with the squad to Huddersfield Town on Saturday.

MK NEWS revealed last week that the Premier League club have placed a £500,000 bid for the Dons starlet, and the cost could rise to £1.3million with add-ons.

Paul Ince wants to take Andrews, who he played with at Wolves and managed at the Dons last year, to Ewood Park and is hopeful of the deal going through by the end of the transfer window on September 1.

Despite not featuring since the Dons' Carling Cup win over Norwich City two weeks ago Andrews has continued to train with the squad.

But the 28-year-old Dubliner, voted the League Two Player of the Year last season, is thought to have played his last game for the Dons.

VIEW FROM THE MOOCAMP

TWO of MK Dons' goalscorers have been named in the League One team of the week.

Peter Leven and Jude Stirling both opened their goalscoring accounts with the Dons in the 3-1 away win over Huddersfield Town.

Stirling once again filled in at centre-back for the injured Danny Swailes but put in a commanding display.

Team of the Week in full: Owain fon Williams (Stockport County), Kerrea Gilbert (Leicester City), Michael Raynes (Stockport County), Jude Stirling (MK Dons), Evan Horwood (Carlisle United), Chris Lines (Bristol Rovers), Peter Leven (MK Dons), Johnnie Jackson (Colchester United), Joel Grant (Crewe Alexandra), Lee Hughes (Oldham Athletic), Ricky Lambert (Bristol Rovers).

Due to the success of the programme the club have included three new age groups for the 2008 / 09 season.

They will be running the following age groups – U9s, U10s, U11s, U12s, U13s, U14s and U15s at the following venues – Newport Pagnell, Buckingham and Kingsbrook.

A DISAPPOINTING start to the season has seen Swindon Town pick up just three points from the nine available to them.

But more worrying for Robins' manager Maurice Malpas is the goals his side have conceded in their opening three matches.

Victory on the first day over Tranmere saw them put three past their opponents.

However, since then three has been anything but the magic number.

They lost 3-2 to Queens Park Rangers and last weekend they suffered a 3-1 defeat at the hands of Colchester United.

To get back on track they will need to beat a Dons outfit that is beaming with confidence.

Since defeat to Leicester Roberto Di Matteo's men have turned on the style by proving the newcomers to the league are no push-overs.

Former Don Jon-Paul McGovern will hope to give his old team mates the run around as he returns to stadiummk for the first time in Swindon colours.

MKSPORT LOCAL CRICKET ROUND-UP

MORRANTS FOUR COUNTIES LEAGUE

Division one

WITH one week left of the cricket season Eaton Bray have their noses in front at the top.

Bray are seven points clear following their draw with Aspley Guise.

Wes Hoskin hit 86 for Eaton (243-6) but Simon Smithers' 55 helped Aspley Guise reach 161-4 and claim a share of the points.

Second-placed New Bradwell kept up the pressure by taking maximum points from a 200-run victory over MK City.

Alan Quelch notched up 101 runs, more than the entire MK City team could post who were dismissed for a poor 79.

Olney Town remain at the foot of the table after losing by five wickets to Winslow Town.

Stuart Keeping's 54no helped Olney reach 172-6 but it was not enough as they slipped to their seventh defeat of the season.

North Crawley (114-5) beat Cublington (110) by five wickets while Milton Keynes (136-8) drew with Newport Pagnell Town (172-8).

Division two

A TOP-of-the-table clash between Old Bradwell and Elstow resulted in a draw.

Elstow had Tom Wilson to thank for guiding them to the point-saving result. His 73 kept them on course as they reached 145-7, just two runs short of victory.

The draw means Elstow remain at the top with a nine-point advantage.

Mentmore are propping up the bottom of the table as they forfeited their game with Biddenham.

Studham were made to pay for registering a low total of 48 when Soulbury handed them an eight wicket defeat.

Division three

EATON BRAY 2nds were tore apart by Richard Fletcher who claimed 6-9 to dismiss the side for 52.

Fletcher's display handed Shenley Church End a 168-run victory.

North Crawley 2nds (149-9) lost to Caddington by five wickets and Drayton Parlsow (102-4) beat Whitchurch (99) by six wickets.

Milton Bryan (184-9) drew with Eggington Foresters (258-7) while New Bradwell 2nds (149-9) and Caddington (153-5) also shared the spoils.

Division four

THE pressure is on at the top of the table as Cranfield University lead by just three points.

The University (124-0) crushed Milton Keynes 2nds by ten wickets, but Stoke Hammond, occupying second spot, also won their match against Printers.

Hammond (114) just edged the win by eight runs, while Harlington (173-5) lost to Willen (175-3) by seven wickets.

MK City are third, only ten points behind leaders Cranfield, following their six wicket win over Totternhoe.

Division five

STEWKLEY 2nds lost by nine wickets to Tring Park 4ths to stay at the foot of the table.

Dave Hurley's century went to waste for Olney Town 2nds (211-9) as the side lost by four wickets to Turvey 2nds.

Meanwhile, Wing (180-4) beat Little Horwood (180-4) by six wickets.

Division six north

ELSTOW 2nds drew with North Crawley 3rds.

Despite dropping points Elstow have run away with the league – they have an 84 point lead.

Elstow (172-2) had Will Wisson top scoring with an unbeaten 43 but North Crawley stuttered their way to 114-5.

CHERWELL LEAGUE

Division two

MK PARK got back to winning ways with a seven-wicket success at home to Bourton Vale.

As usual Ghufran Mohammed was in fine form as he took five wickets for 42, reducing Vale to 159 all out.

Park's reply was solid as James Ward and Graham Simpson put on 45 for the first wicket before Ward (15) was bowled.

James Sprittles carried on his excellent form of recent weeks as he and Simpson went about building a partnership. The score had moved on to 79 when Simpson (31) was caught at mid-off.

The third-wicket partnership of 64 put Park in complete control of the game as Sprittles and James Clark dominated the Vale attack.

Clark had made 32 when Stroud found a way through his defences.

With only 17 runs to win Sprittles (53no) and Mohammed saw Park through to a comfortable seven-wicket victory.

NORTHANTS PREMIER LEAGUE

STONY STRATFORD are running out of time to escape relegation.

They have one game to save themselves but that is against the league's leaders Northamptonshire Cricket Academy.

Stony lost for the ninth time this season as they slipped to an 86-run defeat to Finedon Dolben.

Finedon's Gary Herbert hit 116 from 116 deliveries and John McLoughlin 50no, as the reached 236-7.

Stony's response was poor as only three batsmen reached double figures – the best came from Dion Ebrahim who was unbeaten on 74.

European misery

MOTOR RACING

RED BULL Racing branded the European Grand Prix a disaster as they failed to challenge for points.

The only bright note for the team was the man they will employ next year, Sebastien Vettle, who drove superbly for sixth place.

David Coulthard (above) and Mark Webber had days to forget behind the wheel as the cars lacked pace and the Milton Keynes-based team admitted they got their tactics all wrong.

Webber began the race in Valencia in 4th place on a track not known for overtaking drama, so he prepared for a one-stop strategy.

But the plan backfired as the Aussie driver waited and waited for a safety car to kick-start his bid into action.

It never came and after narrowly avoiding a first-lap clash between Kazuka Nakajima and Fernando Alonso the best Webber could achieve was 12th place on a frustrating afternoon.

Speaking after the race Webber said: "Unfortunately we only made up the numbers. It's the first time this year we've been lapped so comfortably – the mechanics are putting in the same amount of effort as the guys back at the factory but we've stood still with the performance of the car.

"We've got a lot of analysis to do."

But Webber actually had the better performance of the two drivers as Coulthard failed to build on his 17th place.

In fact the Scotsman's race could have ended on the first lap when he was shunted by Renault's Nelson Piquet, from then on it was a case of maintaining the cars condition as Coulthard never had the opportunity to compete on the track.

He now has six races to end his Formula One career on a high.

Coulthard said: "I was hit from behind on the first lap. I came back and passed a couple of cars, but when I tried to pass one of the Force India's, I aborted the manoeuvre and made contact with them, after that the balance and downforce were very poor."

Team boss Christian Horner echoed his driver's thoughts. He said: "A disastrous race. David got involved in an incident in the first lap, which damaged his car and Mark, who was on a one stop strategy, was hoping for a safety car that never appeared. It's our most disappointing race of the year."

Dons left to regret penalty

MK Dons crashed out of the Carling Cup in the second round to Cardiff City, just as they did four years ago.

But on that September night at the National Hockey Stadium the Dons lost 4-1. Last night they came close to their Welsh counterparts but still exited the league cup competition.

Ross McCormack's penalty and a superb Peter Whittingham free-kick either side of half-time gave Cardiff a comfortable looking lead.

Yet, Sean O'Hanlon had other plans as he came off the bench to pull one back.

Unfortunately, it was all a little too late as the Championship side's class shone through and the Dons bowed out.

Roberto Di Matteo named a team mixed with experience and youth.

Drissa Diallo returned from injury while fringe players Craig Dobson, Adam Chicksen and Paul Mitchell all started.

Want-away midfielder Keith Andrews watched from the stands.

Eddie Johnson, on his debut for the Bluebirds after signing on loan from Fulham, was presented with the first chance of the game. The striker was unable to get the connection needed onto Dary Blake's cross to take the ball beyond Willy Gueret.

Craig Dobson chests the ball down on his first start of the season

Jude Stirling was almost made to pay for a mistake where he allowed Ross McCormack to race down the right wing and send a dangerous cross into the box. Luckily for the Dons Diallo was on hand with a thumping clearance.

On the 25th minute Whittingham came close to opening the scoring for the home side when he cut into the centre, skipped through challenges and fired a powerful drive just beyond the post.

The Bluebirds began to find their stride and with it they were starting to cause trouble among the Dons' defenders.

Frustration was evident in both camps as neither side had much luck with clear-cut chances.

Dons' Sam Baldock ran the length and breadth of the pitch hoping to get a sniff, but the Cardiff defence were proving a tough nut to crack.

At the other end Johnson was denied by the fingertips of Gueret, but Cardiff took the lead seconds later when awarded a penalty on the stroke of half-time.

Diallo clipped away the feet of Ricci Scimeca, who was then stretchered off, and Ross McCormack stepped up to dispatch the spot-kick.

The Dons' hopes of getting back into proceedings looked to have faded when Whittingham grabbed a stunning second for Cardiff.

The midfielder doubled the Bluebirds' advantage with a brilliant 30-yard free-kick which flew beyond the wall and past the mid-flight Gueret.

Jemal Johnson had a quiet evening on the wing although he could have found the target with a shot from the edge of the box. The American-born player appeared to fluff his lines, yet he did unsuccessfully appeal for a foul.

Sam Baldock drives forward for the Dons

McCormack should have added to his tally on the 70th minute following a brilliant individual run.

However, he misjudged his power and placement sending the shot into row Z.

The Dons faithful had reason to be optimistic when Sean O'Hanlon pulled one back 15 minutes from time.

O'Hanlon, on the pitch for nine minutes, rose in the box to find the net from Mitchell's free-kick.

Once again McCormack could have put the game beyond doubt, first his free-kick went straight into the arms of Gueret then, minutes later, he blasted wide.

However, last year's FA cup finalists never needed a third as they held off late pressure to progress to the third round.
